

10 unique festivals in Canada you won't want to miss

Celebrating food, music and culture in every season

By Corinne Whiting

Seattle Local Expert

JUNE 26, 2017

Canadian festivals brighten any calendar year, giving locals and visitors a chance to celebrate the best of what the country has to offer. From wintertime ice-centric extravaganzas to summer month gatherings of seafood and music, each province gets in on the action. Here are 10 festivals you definitely won't want to miss.

Devour! | Osoyoos, B.C.

Enjoy festival events like a sensational, five-course gala dinner at the Watermark Beach Resort — Photo courtesy of Destination Osoyoos

As "the South Okanagan's only food, wine and film festival," Devour! Osoyoos returns each spring to showcase the best of what the picturesque region has to offer in all three aforementioned departments. Driven by local agriculture, education and business, the event features the work of B.C.'s best talents (filmmakers, chefs, tradesmen and winemakers, for starters).

Participants enjoy four signature events in addition to supplementary perks from unique tour experiences to decadent dine-arounds in one of Canada's most delicious zones.